Excerpt: . two hundred, some wounded so badly that physicians and priests went with them for fear they might die on the way. Others were not hurt, but were homeless and destitute. One woman had her arms so badly crushed that she had to hold her three months old baby with her teeth by its night dress. Another young girl about sixteen gave birth to a child not more than two hours before Mr. Sexton took her to a hospital. There was hardly an instance where a whole family escaped--mothers mourning for children, children crying for mother and father, men almost crazed from the loss of their families, these were sights one met on every hand. One young Sicilian, who came over on the boat with us, was on his way to visit his family. After several days he went to Paris on his way...
